

NEW MEXICO STATE LIBRARY

TSB overview

TSB staff catalogs and processes all materials added to the New Mexico State Library. We ensure current state documents are widely available to the public across the state through shipments that are part of the New Mexico State Publications Depository Program.

The New Mexico State Library collections include:

- New Mexico history and culture
- Federal government resources
- NM state government resources
- Library science professional development materials

We serve you

TSB is a 6-member team at the State Library and includes four professional catalogers, one federal documents and serials technician, and one state documents technician.

Our constituents include New Mexico public libraries, New Mexico state employees, New Mexico residents & the general public.

While SALSA , our union catalog, currently consists of NM state agencies, we are open to partnering with additional organizations.

Interested in being part of the SALSA consortium and having your library's materials included in the SALSA online library catalog or do you have other cataloging-related questions?

What we do

TSB staff catalogs and processes all materials added to the New Mexico State Library via deposit, purchase, donation, or digital capture.

- For publications issued by state agencies and divisions we use the New Mexico State Documents Classification System and are now enriching newly created records with Library of Congress and Dewey Decimal Classifications to increase discovery of resources.

- For federal government resources we use SuDocs Classification.
- Dewey Decimal Classification we use for items that are part of our Southwest collection.

- We are in charge of quality control for the bibliographic, authority, and serial holdings records in both our local system and in our consortium, SALSA.
- In early 2015 TSB staff began implementing the RDA cataloging standard.
- The state documents technician sends out monthly shipments of current state publications to libraries that are part of the New Mexico State Publications Depository Program with the purpose of making state documents widely available to the public throughout the state.
