Librarian's Letter

Dear Patron,

Summer is finally here with its heat and long days. My flowers have finally bloomed and bees are starting to visit. Even though I am an autumn girl, summer's vibrancy is always welcome. I'm enjoying the late afternoons outside on my balcony with my cats and a glass of iced tea as I play The Legend of Zelda Tears of the Kingdom or read.

I'm currently reading LP-5368 Black Leopard, Red Wolf by Marlon James from our large print collection which was a "booktok" recommendation that I'm enjoying very much. I promised my Library for the Blind and Print Disabled patrons that I'd read the Stephanie Plum series and have finally started DB42474 Two for the Dough by Janet Evanovich on the BARD audio book app. I've also started The Lost Girls of Willowbrook by Ellen Marie Wiseman as an eBook on the Palace Project app, and am rereading one of my favorite comic book series: Lady Killer by Joelle Jones. No matter the format, I love reading.

I'm grateful for the warm welcome and appreciate everyone's patience as I learned the routines and procedures of the library. This is a wonderful experience and I'm so happy to be a part of this program.

Best wishes,

Berdina, Books by Mail Librarian

Announcements

Symphony Catalog: Instead of typing a long and complicated web address, patrons can now reach the online catalog with: nmstatelibrary.org/BBMSymphony
This is an alternate website address to it make it easier for you to get to Symphony to browse and order books.

Ten Book Limit: You may order as many books as you want, but are limited to having a maximum of ten books in your possession. For example, if you order eighteen books, you'll receive ten books and the rest will be placed in your waiting list until some of your books have returned. This rule is placed because:

1. It helps me ensure your orders are accurate and sent out in a timely manner (especially since this is a one-woman library for the entire state smile).
2. Popular books will be sent out quickly. For example, if Patron A has ten books and already has another ten books on their hold list, then Patron B can receive the book first. This doesn't mean Patron A will never receive the book, they'll just be the next to receive it after Patron B.
3. It's less likely that books become overdue or lost and minimizes potential damage.

Library for the Blind and Print Disabled Services: If you have a physical or reading disability or visual impairment that makes it difficult to read standard printed books and would like to get started with free audiobook services with the New Mexico State Library, let me know and I'll be happy to refer you! If you qualify, the LBPD will send you a player and a set of digital tapes or sign you up for the BARD website and mobile app. Check out more information at nmstatelibrary.org/lbpd
